The third round of the Monster Energy Supercross series is the last of three in Houston, Texas that will take place this Saturday, January 23rd inside NRG Stadium. The series has been nothing but edge of your seat action in Houston. There has been a different winner in each class at each round and the results have been mixed round to round. You would have better luck throwing a dart blindfolded with all the riders on the wall than guessing who would finish where. Watch AMA Supercross Online RD#3 Houston tonight. A staple on the Supercross Tour each year, Houston will host the first three rounds of the season from January 16th-23rd.

The decision to move the season opener from California is purely economical, as the Golden State isn't permitting fans to gather en masse, and the sports industry relies heavily on ticketing and concessions.

In the fall, NBC Sports quoted Dave Prater, Feld Entertainment senior director of two-wheel operations, on the matter.

“Up until recently, Angel Stadium, Petco, and Oakland couldn’t really talk to us about what was going to happen because they didn’t know. I’m optimistic, but who knows. California could slide into April if it opens up, but that remains to be seen.”

The state of Texas has hosted a number of sporting events with limited fans in attendance during the COVID-19 pandemic, including the 2020 World Series, Houston, and Dallas NFL games, and some NBA markets have also allowed fans. Like those events, health and safety measures are in place for the AMA Supercross 2021 season opener, and as the season continues on to Indianapolis next month.

Beginning with the start of the 2021 Monster Energy Supercross season on Jan. 16, NBC Sports’ exclusive streaming coverage will move from NBC Sports Gold’s “Supercross and Pro Motocross Pass,” “Supercross Pass” and “Pro Motocross Pass” to Peacock Premium, which is available for $4.99 per month.

2021 Monster Energy: Round 3 AMA Supercross Live Stream 2021 Channels:

What a crazy night. Each Monster Energy Supercross season begins with a stacked field of talent and unpredictable action, and the second round of the 2021 season stirred those ingredients together to create a memorable night of racing. There are so many stories that we don’t even know where to start!

Feld Entertainment has released the first, full 17-round 2021 Monster Energy AMA Supercross schedule. Adam Cianciarulo should be ready to go. Cianciarulo’s rookie year was a mixed bag. He had three podiums and finished outside of the top-five four times in the seven rounds before an injury ended his campaign.

Cianciarulo is coming off a runner-up finish in the 450 Nationals, so he has found consistency on a big bike. Now, he has to carry that over into the stadiums. He could be a title contender this year—no doubt about that.
