The developer of Among Us, a social intuition murder mystery game that's fast become one of the most popular multiplayer titles of the year, is currently battling against a particularly pernicious spam attack. The spam is promoting a mysterious online handle, "Eris Loris," and it became bad enough that Among Us studio InnerSloth had to perform emergency maintenance starting late last night. Hacking and other forms of cheating in Among Us has grown considerably since the game emerged as a popular online pastime during the pandemic this past summer, according to a report from Kotaku. And Among Us has only grabbed more of the spotlight just these past few days, following a hugely successful Twitch stream from Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-NY) alongside high-profile streamers to encourage voting in the upcoming US election. Yet it was only just yesterday players started experiencing the "Eris Loris" spam in their online matches. Developer InnerSloth said on Thursday it was "super duper aware of the current hacking issue" and it would be pushing out an emergency server update to try to address it.
