Hackaday's World Create Day

Hosted by Appalachian Forge Works March 17th 2018

In hosting a Hackaday World Create Day in our town it is our goal to meet with our friends and members of our local community to create something awesome!

We will all come together to create something that we design from scratch. We will also be brainstorming to possibly enter a project for the 2018 Hackaday Prize on behalf of our community. We hope to get as many people involved as we can. Everyone has a different skill set that will help us to build something unique. It will be a great experience!

The event will be located at our workshop in Newland, NC. The address is listed on our website. We will be providing food, drinks, and free coffee! All tools and supplies that will be required to complete this project will be provided.
